

Hakodate , Japan

Saturday, 07 July 2007

We left Tokyo at 10 am and landed at Hakodate airport about 1 pm. Weather was good with a little rain on our departure.

This was a short flight. We left the airport and checked into our hotel.

Hakodate is known for its fresh fish and we wanted to hit the town to experience the local culture and food. There was a mineral pool to soak your feed. The local people believe it has medical effect for your joins and soothing your feed that is considered your second heart.

There

There

I was finely able to convince Arshid to eat Sushi. There

Â Â Â Â

Â Â Â Â